

CURRENT RESIDENT

Darina Georgieva, PharmD
PGY1 Community-Based Pharmacy Resident
Residency Class 2022-23

Darina grew up in Bulgaria but has spent the past seven years in Wisconsin. She received her Doctor of Pharmacy degree with a named option in Operations and Technology Management from the University of Wisconsin-Madison School of Pharmacy in 2022. She most recently was the president of the UW Madison chapter of the Student Association of Specialty Pharmacy and was heavily involved with the leadership society Phi Lambda Sigma. While in pharmacy school she served as a technician, intern, and APPE-Residency Track student at UW Health. APPE rotations at an infusion center and Lumicera Health Services solidified Darina's strong interest in specialty pharmacy and she is thrilled to be continuing her training at Vanderbilt. Darina's interests include autoimmune conditions, rare diseases, infusion, and new service development.

RESIDENT GRADUATES

Laura Petry, PharmD
PGY1 Community-Based Pharmacy Resident
Residency Class 2021-22

Laura grew up in Canton, New York and received her Doctor of Pharmacy degree from Albany College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences. While in pharmacy school, she spent much of her time representing as a student ambassador and serving in a local clinic to provide medical services for uninsured patients. She was introduced to specialty pharmacy during an APPE rotation in rheumatology and is excited to expand upon this experience further at Vanderbilt Specialty Pharmacy. Her clinical interests include inflammatory disease, immunosuppressants in pregnancy, infectious disease, and healthcare in underserved populations.

After completion of her residency, Laura joined Vanderbilt Specialty Pharmacy in a Clinical Pharmacist Position.

Miranda Kozlicki, PharmD
PGY1 Community-Based Pharmacy Resident
Residency Class 2020-21

Miranda grew up in Eden Prairie, Minnesota and received her Doctor of Pharmacy degree with option in Operations and Technology Management from the University of Wisconsin-Madison School of Pharmacy. Her interest in specialty pharmacy grew during her three-year internship at Lumicera Health Services and she is excited to be Vanderbilt Specialty Pharmacy's first pharmacy resident. She co-founded one of the first few Students Association of Specialty Pharmacy chapters in the country while at the University of Wisconsin-Madison School of Pharmacy. Additionally, while in pharmacy school she was part of PDC and served as a pharmacy student ambassador and on the class council. Her professional interests include inflammatory diseases, multiple sclerosis as well as leadership and pharmacy operation management.

After completion of her residency, Miranda joined Vanderbilt Specialty Pharmacy in a Clinical Pharmacist Position.
