VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY MEDICAL CENTER

Intellectual Property Policy

Scope and purpose. This policy relates to the rights of Vanderbilt University Medical Center ("VUMC") with respect to works of authorship created by its employees ("employees") or contractors. Some such persons are also Vanderbilt University ("VU") faculty, students or employees. VU’s rights with respect to works of authorship by VU faculty, students, and staff are contained in VU’s Technology Policy, available at http://cttc.co/inventors/policies/vu-technology-policy. The VU Technology Policy also governs ownership and rights with respect to inventions and computer software created by VUMC employees and contractors, as well as VU faculty, staff, students, and contractors.

Effect of Policy. This policy is a material term of every VUMC offer of employment and resulting employment relationship. The allocations of rights effected by this policy are effective immediately as of the Effective Date or on acceptance of employment, whichever occurs first.

Effective Date. This policy is effective on April 30, 2016.

As used in this policy “works of authorship” means any type of work covered by copyright law, including audio and visual works, as well as the written word, in any medium.

Literary and Artistic Works. All rights in (a) scholarly works of any kind, including books, articles, dissertations, and publications, (b) artistic, literary, film, tape, musical works (except any commissioned by VUMC), and (c) any other works of authorship not created within the scope of employment as a VUMC employee (collectively, “Literary and Artistic Works”) are owned by their creators. Literary and Artistic Works include such texts that have been stored on computer media, but exclude computer programs or computer software or databases that are neither accessory to nor an electronic expression of a scholarly text. Such programs and software are subject to the VU Technology Policy, available at http://cttc.co/inventors/policies/vu-technology-policy.

Works for hire. Works of authorship created within the scope of VUMC employment and not otherwise qualifying as Literary and Artistic Works, and works of authorship commissioned by VUMC, are works for hire under the copyright law and the copyright therein is owned by VUMC, except that works created for VU or its School of Medicine, even if written by VU faculty or other VU personnel employed by VUMC, are deemed works for hire of VU, not VUMC. Examples of VUMC works for hire are reports, memoranda, notes, and correspondence written by VUMC personnel relating to VUMC financial, policy, or administrative matters.
