RESEARCH PROGRAM

ViiV Healthcare (Joint venture between GSK & Pfizer)(Audet) 11/30/2011- 11/30/2014
ViiV Positive Action for Children Fund

We assessed the clinical impacts of educating and engaging men in antenatal care in a rural clinical site in Zambézia Province, Mozambique. We promoted education among men and their mothers to increase engagement of pregnant women in an effort to improve uptake of health services, including prevention of mother to child transmission.

Scaling up Comprehensive Positive Prevention in the Republic of Mozambique

This service grant provides treatment partners with the skills necessary to improved HIV care, treatment, and support for those living in Mozambique. We are testing several strategies to improve referrals, counselling, and support for HIV positive individuals, including those living in the most rural areas.

Optimizing integrated PMTCT services in rural North-Central Nigeria. This parallel, cluster randomized trial seeks to evaluate the impact of a family-focused PMTCT package that includes: 1) task-shifting to lower-cadre providers at PMTCT sites; 2) Point of care CD4+ cell count testing; (3) Integrated mother-infant care; and (4) a prominent role for influential family members (male partners), working in close partnership with community-based health workers/volunteers.

VCTRS Award Program (Audet) 11/01/2012-05/30/2015

The Vanderbilt Clinical & Translational Research Scholars (VCTRS) Program provides junior faculty and fellowship level trainees up to three years of K award equivalent funding, who have been offered a faculty appointment and are committed to a career in clinical or translational investigation, with a mentored research apprenticeship integrated with the didactic training of the MSCI or MPH programs. Research is focused on developing a formal and scalable system to incorporate traditional health practitioners into the allopathic health system.

This National Institute of Mental Health K01 award, Traditional Healers as Adherence Partners for PLHIV in Rural Mozambique, will provide 4 years of protected time for research and training during my time as an Assistant Professor. My research will focus on developing a novel strategy for engaging traditional healers as treatment advocates, educators, and adherence coaches for patients newly diagnosed with HIV in Zambézia Province, Mozambique. The training component will include additional training in psychometrics and survey analysis.

The primary objectives of Partners-based HIV Treatment for Sero-concordant Couples attending Antenatal Care are to evaluate the impact and cost-effectiveness of couples-centered services for HIV-infected seroconcordant pregnant women and their partners. Our intervention includes: (1) ANC-based couples HIV testing, ART enrollment, and care for HIV+ expectant couples; (2) Couple-based treatment in the post-partum period; (3) Couple-based education and skills building; and (4) Treatment continuity with the support of expert-patient (peer) supporters from couples who have successfully navigated EMTCT.

Hazardous drinking (HD) is a major public health burden worldwide with significant morbidity and mortality. The prevention and treatment gap associated with this global burden requires that efficacious interventions be scaled-up, leveraging existing platforms and participation of policy makers ready to apply and sustain evidence-informed policies over time. To reduce HD, the WHO recommends using Screening, Brief Intervention, Referral to Treatment (SBIRT) and the mental health Gap Action Programme guidelines (mhGAP). Community I-STAR Mozambique: Community Implementation of SBIRT using Technology for Alcohol Reduction will employ community health workers equipped with mobile screening and treatment tools to identify and treat people at risk of alcohol abuse in rural Mozambique. My contribution will include the development of a community health worker system to roll out the intervention as well as the analysis and interpretation of SBIRTmHealth data.

Narrative About half of the world's children with epilepsy do not receive treatment – known as the epilepsy treatment gap – with significantly higher rates (67%-90%) in low- and middle-income countries (LMICs). We will conduct the first cluster-randomized clinical trial (cRCT) to determine the efficacy, implementation, and cost-effectiveness of a novel intervention shifting childhood epilepsy care to epilepsy-trained community health extension workers in an effort to close the epilepsy treatment gap. This research will provide information to help extend epilepsy treatment to children in LMICs and worldwide who suffer from untreated seizures.

The Health Plus Diabetes Prevention Program (HP-DPP) is a highly effective employer-based weight management program available to approximately 25,000 employees of Vanderbilt University (VU) and Vanderbilt University Medical Center (VUMC). However, limited participation in the HP-DPP has prevented the program from having a greater impact on obesity and obesity-related illness among VU/VUMC employees. The purpose of this program evaluation is to determine if adding a video-teleconference (VTC) participation option (as a telehealth platform) to the HP-DPP can increase the public health impact of the program by improving its reach while maintaining its effectiveness and implementation.

AIDS-related deaths have continued to increase significantly among adolescents and young adults (AYA) living with HIV, attributed in large part to poor adherence to antiretroviral therapy. Peer relationships play a central role for AYA and can be leveraged, along with financial rewards, to incentivize health behaviors. In this proposal, we aim to adapt and pilot a novel behavioral intervention that uses an mHealth platform to harness both social, peer-based incentives and lottery-based financial incentives to promote medication adherence among AYA in Nigeria.
