Check Your Respirator Compliance Status

Respirator program compliance requires both a medical questionnaire and an annual fit-test. If you are told you are non-compliant, it could be either of these components that are not current. Please check your compliance status at https://myhealthandwellness.vanderbilt.edu to see if a service is overdue.

Here is how to interpret various compliance statuses on My Health and Wellness. Please note that these examples use a date of 1/6/14 as a basis, so past and future dates should be read with that date in mind. When you look at your report, use the current date as your reference to determine if one or more of these requirements are overdue.

1. This screenshot shows that the person is compliant with the fit test (notice the date is in the future), but is NOT compliant with the medical questionnaire (its due date is in the past).

If your compliance page looks like this, then you need to fill out a health questionnaire available from VEHS by emailing respirator@vanderbilt.edu and turn it in to occupational health for evaluation. You should not need to be fit-tested again until the fit-test due date listed.
2. This screenshot shows that the person is compliant with the medical questionnaire but needs to be re-fit tested according to the annual program guidelines (note the due date is in the past).

If your compliance page looks like this, then you should go to http://www.safety.vanderbilt.edu/clinical/n95-respirator-program.php#schedule to find a date, time, and location to have VEHS refit you. Your supervisor may also schedule departmental fit testing if there are several people in your department who need fit testing. If none of these options work, you may schedule an appointment by emailing respirator@vanderbilt.edu.
3. This screenshot shows that a person is NOT compliant with either the medical questionnaire or the fit test (both due dates are in the past).

If your compliance page looks like this, then please email respirator@vanderbilt.edu for an appointment with VEHS for fit-testing. Please mention that you need both the questionnaire and a fit test. During this session you will fill out a medical questionnaire that will be given to occupational health for evaluation.
4. Finally, this screenshot shows a person who is FULLY compliant with the N95 respirator competency (due date is in the future).
